This is checking the automatic capability to check the email and update posts on Wordpress. Isn't technology wonderful? 😊

Merry Christmas!

December 26th, 2009

Dad and I are playing with Wordpress's "Post by Email" functionality. Maybe if Teri and I can just email the site, we'll actually update more often. We'll see...we're pretty lazy.

Welcome to 2academianuts

August 17th, 2009

I am thinking right now about how much I love WordPress. So simple, so lovely. I am also wondering if Traci will notice that not only did I listen to her about our login information, but I also went and created my own login and now I am blogging right along with her on a site that we have had together for 7 years and have basically done nothing with. Well, except for once when we went to Robbers Cave in 2002...we uploaded some pictures. A million miles has passed since then.

I laugh now to think about our website name as neither my sister nor me are actually in academia, but many of our friends are. So perhaps instead of 2academianuts, this should be a blog toacademianuts. Well, even in we aren't in academia we are still nerdy geeks, but that doesn't make a funny play on the name of common tree nut. If you are a couple of academia nuts that feel strongly that you deserve this site, I am sure we would sell for many millions of dollars...or a Whataburger depending on our mood.

Coming soon (or maybe not so soon)

July 9th, 2009

So, as I was transferring our domain and our hosting stuff from GoDaddy (whom I hate) to Bluehost (whom I love), it informed me that we've had this domain since August of 2002. And we've spent most of that time not doing anything with it. I remember that I tinkered with it a bit while we were on our first hosting site, but I haven't ever been able to do anything with the site since we transferred to GoDaddy.

But hopefully, we'll be doing more with our site now that we can actually use it again.
